NYMTC Annual Meeting

Planning for Resiliency: Adapting the Transportation System to Emerging Vulnerabilities

Featured Speaker: Federal Highway Administrator Victor Mendez

Keynote Speaker: Dr. Cynthia Rosenzweig, Senior Research Scientist, Goddard Institute for Space Studies at Columbia University

February 26, 2013, 11AM, U.S. Custom House, One Bowling Green, Auditorium, lower Manhattan

Over recent years, the New York metropolitan region has experienced the direct and destructive effects of dozens of hurricanes, nor'easters, winter storms and other extreme weather conditions. Hurricane Sandy's record breaking surge and intense winds ravaged the transportation links so critical to the region's mobility. Many experts note the increase and ferocity of these types of weather events and urge immediate consideration of resiliency planning and strategies to address the devastating impacts to people, property and the economy. With this in mind, and in the aftermath of Sandy, NYMTC's members have focused their efforts on adapting the transportation system to increase resiliency to emerging vulnerabilities.

At the meeting, NYMTC's members will hear from Federal Highway Administrator Victor Mendez, who will discuss DOT's overall commitment to Hurricane Sandy recovery, the federal government's efforts and activities related to climate change, and FHWA's work related to Climate Change and Extreme Weather Vulnerability Assessments and Adaption Options, including a new project involving NYMTC and its sister MPOs in New Jersey and Connecticut.
